May 1-11 was completely silent

Zero posts, zero impressions. Every new follower, reaction, and comment came from 16 days of publishing. June fix: post at minimum every 5 days.

14 new followers in May - Hit 1,600 total

All 14 arrived during the May 12-27 streak. Consistency drives the compound.

Reaction Gallery

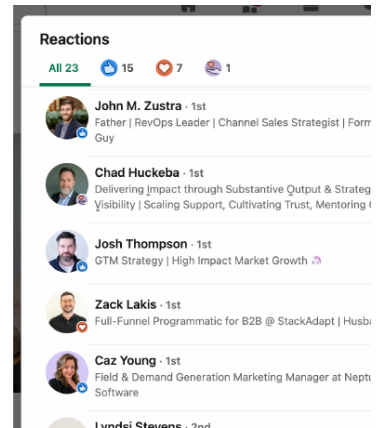

LinkedIn hides who reacted. We opened every post and captured every name.

Your standard analytics shows counts. Not that a Director at Palo Alto Networks or a 4x Founder with an IPO exit were in your audience. These screenshots show exactly who reacted and to what.

Comments That Count

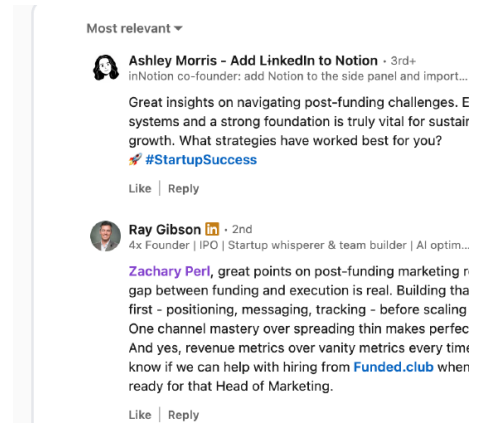

Quality conversations your content sparked, with screenshots.

Not just 'great post' replies. These are Founders, COOs, and Directors who took time to add a real take. Every comment below came from a decision-maker.

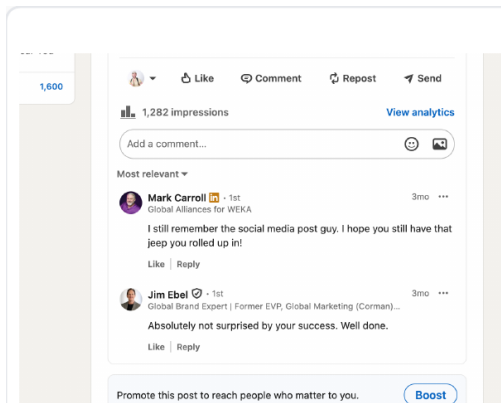

Origin story post

Kate Evetts: 'The GOAT!' - Stephen Tarleton: 'Probably time for you and I to catch up.'

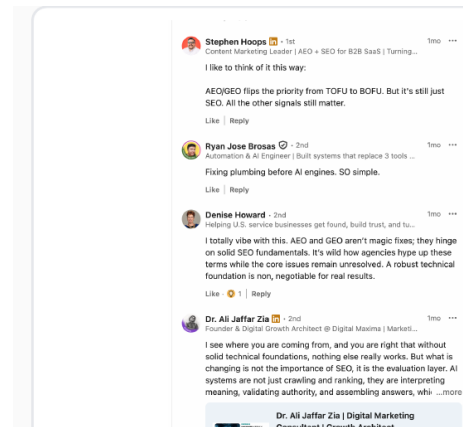

Post-funding strategy

Ray Gibson: the gap between funding and execution is real. Build foundation first.

Personal endorsements

Mark Carroll and Jim Ebel added senior, high-trust social proof.

Flood Watch SEO story

Stephen Hoops, Ryan Brosas, Denise Howard, and Dr. Ali Jaffar Zia joined the thread.

Wins, Notes, and the June Plan

What Clicked This Month

Pricing specificity stopped the scroll

Posts naming real numbers outperformed abstract takes by 3-5x. Reddit and Flood Watch led the month.

One repost, maximum reach

Reddit arbitrage was the only repost and hit the month's highest engagement total.

Kate Evetts wrote a 5-paragraph comment

That is what ICP resonance looks like: a Director-level buyer adding substance.

Consistency = every single new follower

All 14 new followers arrived during the 16-day streak. Showing up compounded.

Zach, We Need to Talk

Eleven days of total silence in the first half of May. Eleven!

The second half proved what happens when you show up: 14 followers, 3,713 impressions, all from 16 days of posting. June cannot repeat that quiet first half.

For June, change the playbook: more stories, more pictures.

Personal, human-centric stories are working right now. Less hiding behind text, more showing what is actually happening.

June: The Game Plan

1

Two posts a week, pretty please.

You showed what 16 days of consistency does. Make that the whole month.

2

DM Kate Evetts and Stephen Tarleton.

These could be warm leads. The window is open right now.

3

Lean into the Reddit angle.

Reddit arbitrage was the month's most-engaged post. Explore more of that in June.
